Ricky Young is an associate in Farella Braun + Martel's Real Estate Practice Group representing developers, owners, contractors, wineries, vineyards, and institutional investors in a variety of real estate transactions. His experience includes representing clients in acquisitions and dispositions, development, financing, and leasing office, industrial, retail, residential, and agricultural real estate.

Ricky's ties to the construction and real estate industry go back to his childhood, walking jobsites with his father, a second-generation contractor, and working on construction projects throughout high school and college. Now as a lawyer representing contractors, real estate owners, and developers, he leverages practical industry experience combined with thoughtful legal insight to counsel and advocate on behalf of his clients.

He served as a judicial extern to the Honorable August B. Landis of the United States Bankruptcy Court in the District of Nevada.
